The Much Talked-of Town Hall is on Its Way--Special Election Nov. 2nd.

WILL NEED $3,500.00 BOND

An Ordinance providing for the building and construction of a village hall, and for the village of Antioch, in the county of Lake and state of Illinois; for the appropriation of moneys for such purpose; for the issuance of bonds to provide funds for the same; for the providing for collection of an annual tax to pay said bonds and interest; for submitting to a special election such appropriation and such issue of bonds.

It is Ordained by the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Antioch, County of Lake and State of Illinois.

Section 1. There shall be built, erected and constructed within and for the Village of Antioch, in the County of Lake and State of Illinois, a one story and one-half brick building, twenty-two feet wide and sixty (60) feet long to be used as a Village Hall, Village Chamber, Council Chamber and for all other village purposes, which said building shall be built, erected and constructed on the following described estate belonging to said Village:

The south twenty-six (26) feet of the south line (29) in County Clerk's Subdivision of unadjudged lands in the Village of Antioch, Illinois, according to the plat thereof recorded in the recorder's office of Lake county in Book G of Plats, pages 76 to 81, which said building shall be built, erected and constructed to conform to all fire regulations of said village, and in accordance with the plans and specifications for the same now on file in the office of the Clerk of said Village.

Section 2. There is hereby appropriated from the funds and moneys of said village not otherwise appropriated and from the proceeds of the sale of bonds for this purpose, the sum of thirty-five hundred dollars ($3500.00) to be used for the purpose of building, erecting and constructing said building for village purposes as above set forth.

Section 3. That for the purpose of providing funds for the building, erection and construction of said building, subject to the approval and authorization of a majority of all the votes cast at an election to be held for that purpose pursuant to law, there shall be borrowed on the credit of said village the sum of thirty-five hundred dollars ($3500.00) and to evidence such loan there is hereby ordered issued the negotiable interest bearing bonds of said Village to said amount, said bonds shall be thirty-five (35) in number, and each of the denomination of one hundred dollars ($100.00), shall bear date the first day of January, 1917; shall be numbered from one (1) to thirty-five (35) both inclusive. Said bonds shall become due and payable in the order of their numbers, five hundred dollars ($500.00) each year, beginning January 1st, 1920; said bonds shall bear interest from and after their date until paid at the rate of five per centum per annum, payable annually, which interest payments to the date of the maturity of the respective principal amounts shall be evidenced by interest coupons attached to the bond, and both principal and interest shall be payable in lawful money of the United States of America at the Bank of Antioch, Antioch, Illinois; each of said bonds and interest coupons shall be signed by the President and attested by the signature of the Clerk of said Village, and the corporate seal of said Village shall be impressed upon each of said principal bonds, but not upon the interest coupons, and such officers are hereby authorized and directed to so execute said bonds and coupons for and in behalf of said Village; said bonds shall be sold by the President and Board of Trustees of said Village and the proceeds derived therefrom shall be placed in the village treasury in a special fund to be used solely for the purpose for which said bonds are being issued.

Section 4. That for the purpose of

FIRE AT THE THOS. WILTON HOME TUESDAY

Quick action on the part of the local fire department prevented the occurrence of a disastrous fire at the home of Mrs. Thos. Wilton Tuesday afternoon. For some reason, a kerosene lamp had been left burning on the dresser in Mrs. Wilton's bedroom. In the course of the afternoon the lamp exploded and the kerosene saturated the dresser and a portion of the floor, this was of course food for the flames and in a short time a brisk fire was blazing. When Mrs. Wilton discovered the smoke pouring from the room she rushed outside and shouted fire.

Men at work on the roof of the Wm. Kelly residence heard the call and hastened to her assistance. Clair Kelly, a member of the fire department made some quick moves in getting to the fire bell and other firemen in a very short time had the apparatus on the way.

Fortunately the fire was soon extinguished and the damage resulting is not very extensive. The dresser was badly burned as was also several articles upon it, and a picture hanging above it. The fire had also run along the floor and had started in one of the pillows.

FORMER WILL IS FOUND, MAY CAUSE TROUBLE

Heirs of Mary Ann Stroink, Grayslake woman who departed this life earlier in the year, may not receive the portions they had expected to obtain under the laws of descent of Illinois, for a prior will has been discovered and a petition for probate entered by an executor named under it, J. K. Orvis.

In September there was a hearing on the will of the deceased, and at that time one of the witnesses to the signing of the documents declared that he believed Mrs. Stroink of unsound mind when the instrument was drawn up. This action vitiated the will and caused the county judge to set it aside. The descendants became heir under the provisions of the statute. Geo. Sheldon, a son who was not named as heir under the will, was given letters of administration and commenced to settle the estate.

Under the terms of the will, Caroline Knoll and Minna Sheldon were to receive $100 each of the estate, valued at $2,022, and the remainder was to go to Wm. H. and Louis Sheldon of Waukegan, grandsons. When the document was set aside, the latter could receive only a small portion of the estate, which was divided according to laws of inheritance.

Then J. K. Orvis appeared with a will which was made several years ago, at a time when the present testator was in good health and he petitions to have this document probated. A hearing will be held on the 30th for that purpose.

Under the prior will, Annie Sheldon, mother of the two named as chief legatees under the other instrument, is to have the entire estate. It is expected that there will be objection to probating the will by those who would benefit under the laws of descent.

Swift-Olson Suit Dismissed
As was expected the election contest which Rodney B. Swift filed against Senator A. J. Olson, charging gross irregularities at the recent primaries, has blown up in smoke. Mr. Swift, through his counsel, Attorney Benjamin H. Miller, announces that the petition will be dismissed. Mr. Swift says that he was misinformed by his friends and that he finds his charges cannot be substantiated. The dropping of the suit is a complete exoneration of Senator Olson, although those who knew the facts in the case asserted from the first that Swift would never be able to prove the charges.

Reviving the Husking-Bee
The Delta Alta class held a husking bee at the farm of A. N. Tiffany last Saturday. Twelve determined workers went in the forenoon and took their lunch. In the afternoon the number was increased to fifteen. When evening came the huskers found they had two hundred bushels of corn to show for their day's work, and the class treasury was made about eight dollars richer. Determined to make the most of the occasion a second bee was held on Tuesday afternoon, at which time about another two hundred bushel was husked after which an oyster supper was served.

Besides adding a tidy sum to the class treasury the young people seem to be enjoying the work and are having a genuine good time.

KEROSENE EXPLOSION CAUSES DEATH

Mrs. Barney Bohm, Sr., of Grayslake is Victim of Accident

POURS KEROSENE ON FIRE

Burned almost beyond recognition, Mrs. Elizabeth Boehm of Grayslake, is dead as the result of an explosion. The terrible injuries sustained by the woman at her home Monday evening when a quantity of kerosene that she poured into a stove to "make a quick fire," exploded. She was severely burned about the face, neck, shoulders and arms. The flesh was so badly charred that if she had survived the cries, the grafting of skin on the burns would have been necessary to save her life.

The explosion was heard by residents a block away from the home. It seems that Mrs. Boehm, in a hurry to prepare the evening meal, poured a large amount of oil into the stove. The action was followed immediately by the explosion. Other occupants of the home beat out the fire about the clothing of the victim with their hands. The Conrad & Wetzel ambulance was summoned and Mrs. Boehm was taken to the Kane McAllister hospital. Mrs. Boehm has been a resident of the county for about thirty years. Her husband, Barney Boehm, Sr., passed away about twelve years ago. He was a prominently known resident of the county.

YOUNG FARMER IS ARRESTED ON ARSON CHARGE

Joseph Bakutis, a young Polish farmer who has been working a small tract of land at Hickory Corners, for the past few days, was arrested after dark Tuesday on an arson charge by Constable Clarence E. Hicks.

Bakutis is alleged to have willfully burned down the barn on the Dugdale farm. The complainant is the woman who now holds a lease on the premises. Bakutis and a woman--not his wife--were arrested, but the woman was released by Justice of the Peace Wise. Bakutis' case has been continued until the 17th day of October, and his bonds have fixed at $1,000.

He charge with having burned down the barn in which the woman with whom he boarded had stored a lot of hay. Bakutis and the former tenant of the Peabody tract, were seen in the barn about three or four hours before the fire broke out, but they claim that it was nearly six hours before the fire was discovered and they claim that they can prove an alibi.

They were unable to speak English, so a 10-year-old girl was called in as interpreter. The barn burned the same day that the woman with whom Bakutis boarded gave up the lease. That same day a tenant moved in, and it was the new tenant who signed the warrants for the arrest on the arson charge.

Liberty or Death
A distinguished part of Kenosha county officials--including the district attorney, the county clerk, a deputy sheriff and the town chairman of the town of Salem went out to Silver Lake on Tuesday afternoon with a view of bringing John Darling and his wife back to Illinois and Antioch. The officials had a conveyance ready to take the old man and his wife back to their former home here but they ran up against a stone wall when Darling declared, "I'll die before I return to Antioch."

Darling and his wife are alleged to be charges on the charity of the people and they moved over from Illinois just a year ago. Efforts were made to send them out of the county on Tuesday in order that they might not claim support from that county on the year's residence. It is claimed that Illinois officials sent aid to the Darling family in February of this year and this may serve as a stay of proceedings. The Darling family is living on a farm near Silver Lake and the owner of the farm has been notified that he will be held responsible for their support unless they are sent back to Illinois.

APPOINTMENTS OF ROCK RIVER CONFERENCE

Rev. E. L. Thompson, of Pekatonia, Appointed to the Antioch Charge

HESTER TAKES VACATION

The Rock River Conference of the M. E. Church closed its session on Tuesday with several appointments as yet not made.

Rev. E. K. D. Hester who has charge of the M. E. Church here for the past two years asked for a year's relief from work and has made arrangements to enter employment with Lincoln Chautauque company, for that length of time. Mr. Hester informs us that he is to be stationed at Atlanta, Georgia, this winter as the Chautauque company is opening up a new field in that locality. Mrs. Hester and family are not planning to accompany him but expect to locate near Chicago.

Rev. E. L. Thompson, from Pekatonia, has been sent to Antioch, but as he will not be here in time to take charge of next Sunday's service, Rev. Hester will speak as usual.

Rev. A. O. Stixrud goes to Lake Bluff, Rex F. R. McNamer goes to Chestnut. Rev. E. J. Alkin remains at Chicago Lawn, Rev. Hutchinson who has been at Lake Villa for the past four years leaves the Rock Conference and moves to Iowa. Rev. T. E. Rean goes to Libertyville. Grayslake, Lake Villa, Hickory, Rosecranes, were among the places yet to be supplied.

Rev. Hester has been very successful in his work here and the fact that he is not to remain is the cause of much genuine regret.

OFFICERS WOMEN MAY VOTE FOR AT COMING ELECTION

Owing to the large number of inquiries I have received in regard to the qualifications of women voters and what they may vote for at the election of November 7, 1916, I herewith submit the following:

Qualifications of women voter--To be a qualified voter, a woman must be a citizen of the United States, above the age of twenty one years, must have resided in the state one year, in the county ninety days and thirty days in the election district in which she desires to vote.

Foreign born women, who are otherwise qualified and who have married a natural born or naturalized citizen of the United States, becoming citizens for voting purposes.

Foreign born women whose parents become naturalized after they have reached their majority are not citizens of the United States.

A woman born in the United States of foreign parents, regardless of whether either of her parents were naturalized, is a citizen, unless such parents were temporarily in the United States.

A woman citizen of the United States who married an alien thereby forfeits her citizenship, whether such alien is a resident of the United States or not.

Registration--When registration is required, women shall register in the same manner as those of men. In registering a woman should state her Christian name. For example, "Mary Smith" and not "Mrs. John Smith."

In registering a woman should state her exact age in number of years. Officers for whom women may vote at the November election in Lake County, Illinois:

State--Electors of President and Vice President of United States. Trustees of University of Illinois. District--Members of the State Board of Equalization.

County--County Surveyor. Women may not vote for any question or proposition submitted to a vote under any constitutional provision.

For example--1. To amend the constitution. 2. To amend the banking act, which will be submitted to the male voters November 7, 1916.

LEW A. HENDEE, County Clerk.

TWO EXCITING BASKET BALL GAMES ARE PLAYED

Two very exciting games of basket ball were played at the High school gym last Friday evening. The teams booked to play were Allendale and Wilmot against Antioch Freshmen and Junior teams but the failure to arrange the game with Allendale brought forth the Wilmot Freshman.

First game played was Antioch Freshmen and Wilmot Freshmen and they sure did go to those Wilmot boys in fine shape, of course a few fouls were marked up for Antioch, as it was the first game of the season, but when the first half was over Antioch had the lead by 11 points. Then came the big teams to the front the Antioch Juniors and Wilmot Juniors. These two teams were well matched and staged a good scrap from start to finish the first half showed Antioch ahead by 6 while Wilmot had 5 points.

The Freshmen were given the floor again to finish their half and the way they tore into the game, showed they were after the bacon. The score at the finish was 37 to 4, not so bad at that.

The Juniors came forth then, showing a little bit of spirit, but didn't seem to get the inside track until the score was tied 10 to 10 and things got quite hot for a few moments until Wilmot slipped in two more points and from then on Antioch lost all hopes of course the crowd didn't have the least bit of encouragement as you could hear anybody saying a word when they should keep right on chasing Antioch when they were tied. The score was 19 to 13 in the end, but wait, their is hope to get it back again.

PLEASE CO-OPERATE WITH THE LOCAL FIRE DEPARTMENT

Owing to the present cramped quarters in which the firemen have their apparatus stored, they were some what hindered in making their run, when the fire bell sounded the alarm Tuesday afternoon. The way things are piled in and the extra time it requires to get them out would prove serious in case of a big one. It is hoped that the department may be better provided for in the near future. Not only is the apparatus badly crowded but the boys are at present without a place to hold their meetings.

In appreciation of the efforts of the boys to protect the property of the entire town, we extend to them an invitation to make the News office their meeting place. We are willing to extend to them, free of charge, such convenience as our office may afford, until they may be better provided for.

As we repeat "Helplessness of Fire Department, is a result of unsuitable or unreliable apparatus, poorly organized Departments, and badly located fire houses, or poor water supply."

Brought Autos to Lake Co.

Geo. Huntley, alias Fish, a 15-year-old boy living in Chicago, has confessed to the police in that city, that he was part of a gang of youngsters who made a practice of stealing automobiles and then running them out to Area, near Diamond Lake and keeping them under cover until they could be disposed of. Young Huntley made a complete confession of his activities as a bandit, telling of the numerous times he has driven stolen cars into Lake county.

Huntley told how a band of youthful thieves, some only 14 years of age have been stealing autos right and left, disposing of them through insurance agents and automobile "fences."

This confession clears up the heretofore unsolved mystery of the band of young men who have been coming out of Diamond Lake all summer. Sheriff Griffin was called to investigate but the boys were given him too late as the members of the gang had departed. Huntley's confession makes the whole situation quite clear.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Pitman went to Eau Claire Monday where Mrs. Pitman underwent an operation. Miss Anna Horel accompanied them.

An old bear and three cubs were shot on the Jos. Barnstable farm last week. In speaking of it the Chetek Alert says wild animals are getting to be quite numerous around Chetek, for only a few weeks ago a lynx was killed just outside of the city limits and several bears have been seen in this part of the country this fall.

Chase Webb Estate is Probated
Estate of Chase Webb, for years a prominent business man of Waukegan, has been admitted to probate. By the terms of the testator, Mrs. Webb is given the family residence in lieu of dower and the estate divided in fifths, with four children of the deceased, David T., Frank A. Mary M. Yager and E. C. Webb each given one part and Janette and Margaret Smart, grandchildren, receiving the remaining fifth which would have gone to their mother.

Dr. T. Webb has filled his bond as executor.

The IDYL of TWIN FIRES

WALTER PRICHARD EATON

As the busy autumn days came upon us, Twin Fires took on a new aspect, and one to us greenhorns indescribably thrilling. In the first place, our field of corn rustled perpetually as we walked past it, and down in the greenish-golden lanes beneath we could see the orange gleam of pumpkins (I shall so spell the word lest it be mispronounced by the ignorant). Great ears of the Stowell's evergreen were ripe, for Mike's prediction about the early frost had not come true, and the succulent food clean to the cob every day at dinner, besides selling many dozens of ears to the market. In the long light of afternoon, Stella loved to go along the path by the hayfield wall and then turn in amid the corn, losing sight at once of all the universe and wandering in a new world of rustling leaves. She felt, she said, just as Alice must have felt after she had eaten the cake; and once a rabbit bounded across her foot, to her unspeakable delight. She looked to see if he had dropped his gloves!

Then there was the potato field. We were eating our own new potatoes now. Often Stella dug them. "It seems so funny to go and dig up a potato," she declared. "I've always felt that potatoes just were. But to see the whole process of growth is quite another matter. Oh, John, it makes them so much pleier!"

"Especially when you are getting seventy-five cents a bushel for them," I laughed.

The loaded tomato vines, too, with the red fruit hanging out from the wire frames and sending a pungent odor into the surrounding air, appealed to Stella endlessly. I used to see her now and then, as I glanced from the south room of a morning, eating a raw tomato like an apple, her head bent forward so that the juice would not spoil her dress.

And there were the apples! Already a red astrachan tree invited us on every trip to the brook, and other old trees were bearing fast-reddening fruit. I had wanted to set out more orchard, but we agreed that we could not afford it that year, if we were to build chicken houses against the spring, so I reluctantly gave up the idea. But our old trees, in spite of (or perhaps because of) my spring pruning, were doing fairly well. We had enough for baked apples and cream all winter, nayhow, Stella reckoned, smacking her lips at the thought. Every day, on our way to the pool, one or the other of us took a hoe along and seraped a tree for five minutes, gradually getting the old bark off, and making a final preparation for a thorough spraying the next winter just so much easier. I used to prune a bit, too, in spare moments, so that by the end of the summer considerable renovation had been accomplished.

And now came the foxglove transplanting. According to the gardener's directions, we took two long rows where the early peas had stood (and where Mike had disobeyed my instructions to spade the vines under, that being a form of green manuring your old-time gardener will not see the value of, I have discovered), treneched them, put in manure and soil, and set out at least three hundred foxglove plants six inches apart. It was a cool, cloudy day, and they stood up as though nothing had happened. Then, as an experiment, we moved scores of tiny hollyhocks from the crowded seedbeds into their permanent position in a screen between the south kitchen windows and the sundial lawn, and as a border on the west side of the same lawn. They, too, were quite unaffected by the change.

Meanwhile, we ordered our bulbs—hyacinths, daffodils (which in our climate refuse to take the winds of March with beauty, cowardly waiting till May), a few crocuses, Narcissus poeticus, Empress narcissus, German iris, Japanese iris, and Darwin tulips. We ordered the iris and tulips in named varieties.

"They have such nice names," said Stella, "especially the Japanese iris—Kintu-no-megumi, Shiranuki, Momochigumai. The tulips are nice, too. Here is Aridne and Kate Greenaway hobnobbing with Professor Rawen-hoff! What's the use of having plants that aren't named? We must show them as much respect as Antony and Cleopatra, or Epictetus and Luella!"

We also experimented with lilacs—lemon-lilacs for the shady north side of the house, tigers for the border beyond the pool, and two or three of the expensive Myriophyllum, just to show that we, too, could go in for the exotic, like our neighbors on the big estates.

When the bulbs came, in big baskets, we looked at the boxes sadly.

"Whew!" said Stella, "you can't be lazy and have a garden, can you?"

"I don't work tomorrow, I guess," said I. "Shall we ask Mike's Joe to help us?"

"Never!" said my wife. "We'll put these bulbs in ourselves. If I had any help, I should feel like the Electra, which God forbid!"

So the next day at seven-thirty we began. We rined the pool with German and Japanese iris, alternated for succession, and planted a few Japanese both below and above the pool, close to the brook. We set the Narcissus poeticus bulbs where, if they grow, the flowers could look at themselves in the mirror below the dam. The Empress narcissus we placed on both sides of the pool just beyond the iris. On each side of the bench we placed a bulb of our precious Myriophyllum, and put the fingers into the borders close to the shrubbery on both sides. The hyacinths went into the sundial beds, the Darwins into the beds at the base of the rose aqueduct, a few crocuses into the sundial lawn, and the daffodils here and there all over the place, where the fancy struck us and the ground invited.

"Now, I'm going to label everything, and put it on a map besides," cried Stella, "except the daffodils. I want to forget where they are. I want surprises in the spring. Oh, John, do you suppose they'll come up?"

"Yes, I suppose they will," I laughed, "some of them. But do you suppose we'll ever get the kinks out of our backs?"

"I'm willing to go doubled up all the rest of my life for a garden of daffodils all my own," she cried.

And then my heart with pleasure thrills And dances with the daffodils. "It was very thoughtful of old Wordsworth, and Shakespeare, and Masefield, and all the rest to write nice things about daffodils, wasn't it, John? I wonder if gardens would be so wonderful if it weren't for all their literary suggestions, and the lovely things they remind you of? Gardens have so much atmosphere! Oh, spring, spring, hurry and come!"

I forgot my lame back in her enthusiasm, and later, when the apples were gathered, the potatoes dug, the beet and carrots in the root cellar, our own sweet cider foamed in a glass pitcher on our table, and the first snow spits of December whistled across the fields, we put a little long manure over the frises and other bulbs, and pine boughs over the remaining perennials, and wrapped the ramblers in straw, with almost as much laughing tenderness as you would put a child to bed.

The cows were back in the stable, and Mike had revised his opinion of cork-asphalt floors when he realized the ease of cleaning with a hose; the potatoes and apples and onions and beets and carrots for our family use were stored in barrels and bins in the cellar, or spread on shelves, or buried in sand. The vegetable garden was newly plowed, and manure spread on the hayfield. Antony and Cleopatra had been captured and brought into the dining room, where they were to spend the winter in a glass bowl. Epictetus and Luella and Gladys and Gynon had all borrowed out of sight into the ground. The peasant of autumn on our hills was over, only an amethyst haze succeeding at sunset time. Wood fires sparkled in our twin hearths. The summer residents had departed. Our first Thanksgiving turkey had been eaten, though a great stone crock of Mrs. Pillig's incomparable mince meat still yielded up its treasures for ambrosial pies.

"And now," said Stella, "I'm going to find out at last what a country winter is like!"

"And your friends are plying you down in town," said I. "Don't you want to go back to them till spring?"

Stella looked at the fires, she looked out over the bare garden, and the plowed fields to the dun hillsides, she listened a moment to the whistle of the bleak December wind, she looked at me.

In her eyes I read her answer.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Horas Non Numero Nisi Serenas. But this story is, after all, an idyl, and the idyl is drawing to its close. Even as the Old Three Decker carried tired people to the Islands of the Blessed, my little tale can only end with "and they lived happily ever after."

That second summer at Twin Fires, of course, showed us many things yet to be done. Neither Rome nor the humblest garden was ever built in a day. Our ramblers did their duty well, but the grape arbor and the pergola would not be covered properly in a season. There were holes in the flower beds to be filled by annuals, and mistakes made in succession, so that July found us with many patches destitute of any bloom. Out in the vegetable area there were first cutworms and then drought and potato blight to be contended with. In our ignorance we neglected to watch the hollyhocks for red rust till suddenly whole plants began to die, and we had to spray madly with Bordeaux and pull off a great heap of infected leaves, to save any blooms at all. There were clearings to be made in the pines for ferny spots, and constant work to be done about the pool to keep the wild bushes from coming back. There were chickens to be looked after now, also, and new responsibilities in the village for both of us. We had neither attempted nor desired to avoid our full share of civic work. We lived a busy life, with not an hour in the day idle, and few hours in the evening. We lived so full a life, indeed, that it was only by preserving an absolute routine for my own bread-winning labors, from 9 a. m. till one, that I was able to resist the strenuous call of farm and garden, and get my daily stint accomplished.

The preceding summer I had made about two hundred dollars out of my produce, which in my first naive enthusiasm I reckoned merely in dollars and cents, and the second season showed a different result. Having two cows and a small family, I managed to dispose of my surplus milk and cream to a farmer who ran a milk route. This brought me in $73 a year. As I further saved at least $100 by not having to buy milk, and $50 by Peter's efforts at the churn, and could reckon a further profit from manure and calves, my cows were worth between three hundred and four hundred dollars a year to me. Now that we had hens and chickens, we could reckon on another $100 saved in egg and poultry bills. To this total I was able to add at the end of the summer more than five hundred dollars received from the sale of fruit and vegetables, not only to the market but to the hotels. I was the only person in Benford who had cultivated raspberries for sale, for instance, and the fact that I could deliver them absolutely fresh to the hotels was appreciated in so delicate a fruit. Stella and Peter were the pickers. I also supplied the luns with peas, cauliflower and tomatoes. Thus the farm was actually paying me in cash or saving at least a thousand dollars a year—indeed, much more, since we had no fruit or vegetable bills the year through, Mrs. Pillig being an artist in preserving what would not keep in the cellar. But we will call it a thousand dollars, and let the rest go as interest on the investment represented by seeds and implements. To offset this, I paid Mike $500 a year, and employed his son, Joe at $1.75 a day for twenty weeks. This left me a profit of about two hundred dollars on my first full season at Twin Fires, which paid my taxes and bought my coal. Out of my salary, then, came no rent, no bills for butter, eggs, milk, poultry nor vegetables. I had to pay Mrs. Pillig her $20 a month therefrom, I had to pay the upkeep of the place, and grocery and meat bills (the latter being comparatively small in summer). But with the great item of rent eliminated, and my farm help paying for itself, it was astonishing to me to contemplate what a beautiful, comfortable home we were able to afford on an income which in New York would keep us in an upper West side apartment. We had thirty acres of beautiful land, we had a brook, a pine grove, an orchard, a not too formal garden, a lovely house, in which we were slowly assembling mahogany furniture which fitted it. We had summer society as sophisticated as we cared to mix with, and winter society to which we could give gladly of our own stores of knowledge or enthusiasm and find joy in the giving. We had health as never before, and air and sunshine and a world of beauty all about us to the far, blue wall of hills.

Above all, we had the perpetual incentive of gardening to keep our eyes toward the future. A true garden, like a life well lived, is forever becoming, forever in process, forever leading on toward new goals. Life, indeed, goes hand in hand with your garden, and never a fair thought but you write it in flowers, never a beautiful picture but you paint it in grass, and with the striving lawn patiences, and with the half accomplishment the "divine unrest."

Horas Non Numero Nisi Serenas.

reads the ancient motto on our dial plate, and as I look back on the years of Twin Fires genesis, or forward into the future, the hours that are not sunny are indeed not marked for me. I am writing now at a table beneath the pergola. The floor is of brick, laid (somewhat irregularly) by Stella, and me, for we still are poor, as the Tekstroms would reckon poverty, and none of what Mrs. Deland has called "the grim inhibitions of wealth" prevents us from doing whatever we can with our own hands, and finding therein a double satisfaction. Over my head rustle the thick vines—a wistaria among them, which may or may not survive another winter.

It is June again. I know that a path now wanders up the brook almost to the road, amid the wild tangle, and ends suddenly in the most unexpected nook beneath a willow tree, where lies a second tiny pool. I know that the path still wanders the other way into the pines—pines larger now and more numerous of the sea—past beds of ferns and a lone cardinal flower that will bloom in a short of sunlight. Somewhere down that path my wife is wandering, and she is not alone. A little form in front of her sits, perhaps, with a book, or more likely with a sewing in her busy fingers, or more likely still with hands that stray toward the sleeping child and ears that listen to the seashell murmur of the pines whispering secrets of the future. Is he to be a Napoleon or a Pasteur? No less a genius, surely, the prophetic pines whisper to the listening mother!

My own pen halts in its progress and the ink dries on the point. And hark, from the pines a tiny cry! Can he want his father?

THE END.

HOW THE BRITISH BROUGHT DOWN TWO MIGHTY ZEPPELIN RAIDERS

All London Turned Out in Its Night Clothes to Watch Thrilling Spectacle of Battle Between Great Airships From Germany and Flock of Defending Aeroplanes and Land Guns—People Showed No Fright, and Millions Cheered When One Invader Shot to Earth, a Mass of Flames.

London.—The most formidable air raid of history apparently has been at the same time, the greatest failure.

Previous raids on England carried out by two or even one airship have exacted a far more severe toll of life and wrought tremendous damage as compared with what was done by the fleet of 13 Zeppelins which came to London early one morning recently, while, on the other hand, for the second time in the history of the present war two of the mighty Zeppelins were actually brought down and one was destroyed.

On one other occasion a Zeppelin was forced to come down and was lost in the Thames, but this time the airships actually met their finish through the good work of the British flying corps, after what was beyond a doubt the most thrilling battle in the air which has ever occurred.

The real story of the raid and the battle in the air cannot be told, at least for the present, and all attempts to describe what happened during the night must be limited to the accounts which are sanctioned for publication by the official press bureau.

What the Airships Did.

The sum total of casualties and damage caused by the 13 Zeppelins is as follows:

Killed—Thirty persons.
Injured—About 100 persons.
Twenty-five houses and some out-buildings slightly damaged in the Metropolitan police area.

Two water mains cut.

A number of cottages and a church damaged in other areas.

A fire at some gas works.

Remarkable scenes were witnessed in London while the anti-aircraft guns were blazing away at the raiders.

From the roof of the Savoy hotel, the correspondent obtained a perfect view of the airships brought down. They presented a wonderful sight, caught in the glare of more than a dozen searchlights, illuminating them from every angle. The light flashed us a signal by the victorious airman was plainly discernible above the destroyed raider, and a minute later flames were seen to burst forth from the huge airship, while shells were hursting all around it.

The giant machine, now only a mass of flames, fell rapidly, meteorlike, to the ground, but so great was its height at the time when it met its doom that its fall seemed slow.

Throngs on Streets.

In London theaters, restaurants, cafes and bars close promptly at midnight under the new Defense of the Realm regulations, but although it was then after two o'clock in the morning the streets were packed and a wild roar of cheers marked the fall and destruction of the unwelcome raider.

Hurrying from the roof to the ground floor of the hotel, the correspondent, although having already seen three air raids on London, witnessed never-to-be-forgotten scenes. Staircases and corridors were thronged with people aroused from their slumbers, but few indeed were those who displayed the slightest sign of fear.

Women, who shortly before midnight had been dancing in the ballroom of the Savoy, elaborately gowned and bejeweled, were cumping on the stairs in scanty night attire. Of men there were few to be seen. In private cars, taxicabs, or even afoot they had already started for the spot where the remains of the Zeppelin and the bodies of its crew were then being consumed by the flames.

The little suburb of Cullsey, near Enfield, about eighteen miles from the center of London, where the Zeppelin met its fate, jumped into sudden fame and became the scene of a continuous pilgrimage of sightseers from all parts of the metropolis.

Those who expected to carry off souvenirs of the event, however trifling, were disappointed, for every particle of the wreckage that had escaped the attention of early collectors had safely passed into official custody.

Flock to the Scene.

The scenes at Cullsey were of a remarkable character. Hundreds of thousands of persons flocked to see the wrecked raider, and such was the congestion on the local railway that an order had eventually to be issued that all bookings must cease. When night came hundreds were stranded and many made the return journey partly on foot.

The superintendent of aircraft construction and other high officers connected with the flying services were early upon the scene and spent a considerable time inspecting the machinery parts of the Zeppelin which had "up" to then been recovered.

Gen. Sir Sam Hughes, Canadian minister of militia, was among the first to inspect the wreckage. The airship came to earth with such force that much of the machinery, including the engines, each of which weighs a quarter of a ton, was deeply buried in the earth. The work of digging these valuable parts of the debris out proceeded until dark.

As each piece of machinery was recovered it was carefully inspected and in a large number of cases photographed from different angles by a special staff of official photographers.

Afterward it was carefully placed in one of the motor lorries for removal.

Tells of Finding Bodies.

A special constable gave a thrilling account of the tragedy.

"When I reached the spot," he said, "the Zeppelin—a mangled mass of ruins—was still a seething furnace, with tongues of hissing flames licking the framework, and reducing it to molten metal. So fierce was the heat that it was at first impossible to approach to close quarters. Puffs of water had to be fetched from a pond in a field some distance away to cool the remains, and the work of extricating the bodies was proceeded with.

"That of the commander of the Zeppelin was first discovered. His left hand was still resting on the steering wheel, but his right hand had been torn away.

"Close by, the charred remains of six other members of the crew were with difficulty extricated from the wire entanglement to which the skeleton of the fabric had been reduced, and were taken to the outhouse of a neighboring inn. Upon the hand of one was found a diamond ring.

"Four engines were taken from the crumpled airship, together with a clock, which survived intact, the hands stopping at ten minutes past three."

Saw the Raiders.

The arrival of the German raiders over the suburbs of London is related as follows by one who saw the destruction of the airship from one of the heights of Cullsey, where the raider came to grief.

"Some time after midnight the silence was bitten into by the deep boom of guns. Occasionally the muzzle of mist was pierced by gun flashes. The boom of the guns found an answering echo along the hills and valleys in the distance. For a time nothing could be seen to justify the unwonted activity. Gradually our ears caught the sound of a dull droning noise overhead. It came nearer, getting louder and louder, until it resembled the roar of a fast traveling train.

"I swept the skies with my glasses. The outline of an airship was faintly discernible crossing out of the mist from east to west. It hovered about for a while as though the crew were trying to find their bearings. Suddenly it began to bear north. It swerved shortly and moved rapidly westward again, turning later and making straight for the south at a high speed.

"Once more it turned east until it came astride the main road to —, when it bore steadily along parallel with the road.

Searchlights Shine Out.

"Meanwhile searchlights were played east, west, north and south of the road, their range stretching far out like the tentacles of an octopus. So far the raider had managed to evade the light. Now, however, one ray fell full across its path. It lighted the airship up beautifully, making it look like a number of silver-scaled fish. Other rays were concentrated and began to play on the monster. The sky was now one blaze of revealing light in the vicinity.

"In vain did the Zeppelin move about, hither and thither, seeking a way of escape. Everywhere the raider was pursued by those fatal rays. The guns began to play around the airship. Shells burst all around. Some got very close. The airship made a quick maneuver as though to escape northward. The pitiless searchlight followed and the raider was caught between two powerful rays and lined against a dark bank of clouds.

"That was the beginning of the end. There was a gun flash, followed by a roar. The raider was struck. Through my glasses I could plainly see it reel and rock under the hit. Then it began to descend earthward, very slowly. It could not now escape the rain of missiles. After the next hit the rear part of the Zeppelin broke into flames.

"The ship then floundered about in the air as though its crew had lost control of it. It was now one mass of flame, looking like a blazing house suspended in midair. There was no question of escape. Its descent quickened, and finally it crashed to earth less than a mile from the height on which we had watched.

Crew in Vast of Flames.

"As it approached the ground the figures of the crew could be seen wreathed about by flames. Two of them either fell or jumped from the airship when it was about two hundred feet above the ground. While the blazing raider was suspended helplessly in the air three loud explosions were heard in rapid succession. It was after the last of these that the final earthward plunge was made.

The flight was watched by crowds on the hillsides for miles around. As the monster took her final plunge, round about of cheers blended with the boom of the guns."

An account of one of the very few houses situated in the district where the Zeppelin fell says:

"Suddenly the Zeppelin assumed a perfectly perpendicular position, and a tremendous flame burst from her, traveling from the bottom to the top. It was for all the world like applying a match to a new incandescent gas burner. She slid down toward the ground, and it all happened in about fifteen seconds.

"I made for the spot where she fell, and found her a huge heap of broken metal. There was smoldering in some places. Shortly afterward the fire brigade arrived on the scene and the hose was played on her for some time."

Seen Zeppelin Fall.

Another eye witness says:

"I saw a Zeppelin completely focussed by several powerful searchlights. It appeared to be at a great height, but it seemed that it must be hit at any moment, so splendid was the marksmanship of our gunners. Presently the Zeppelin disappeared in the low-lying clouds, and while the searchlights continued to play on the spot where the Zeppelin had been focussed a glow spread over the sky and gradually extended and increased in its intensity until the whole heavens were illuminated.

"In the center of this magnificent glow was a huge flame, which soon became larger and larger. It was quickly apparent that the Zeppelin was well alight. The airship tilted at an angle of some 80 degrees, and in a few seconds the conflagration extended the full length of the airship. Almost as suddenly the huge blaze subsided into a dull red glow, and the spectacle was at an end."

Yet another spectator saw it thus:

"The air was full of the reports of anti-aircraft guns and falling bombs. Suddenly a great blaze of light appeared in the sky at an altitude of many thousands of feet. A great column of flame shot up, and a great cloud of smoke could be seen rolling above the fire. The flames shot up hundreds of feet.

"As the raider slowly fell to the earth its appearance suggested a huge fiery parachute. The blazing mass gathered speed as it fell while the flames alternately expanded and contracted. By the time the airship was within a thousand feet of the ground, all the gas had apparently left the bag, and only the solid framework and the gondolas containing the wrecked engines and the scorched and lifeless bodies of the crew reached the ground."

Centered in Light Ball.

Another watcher on a hill north of London thus describes the plight of the Zeppelin before it was hit:

"When the guns opened fire, the Zeppelin had already been centered in the ball of light created by the myriad arms of pale lights which shot up suddenly from the darkness of the city. The Zeppelin was at a great height—so great, indeed, that it seemed just like a bar of polished steel, neat the thickness of an engine piston rod, and there it remained, apparently motionless and undecided which way to go, while the guns peppered it without cessation.

"Shells burst around it, in front and behind it, above and below it. It made to turn as if in the direction of the const, but a shell burst ominously near its nose and caused it to swing round in the opposite direction. Its tail dipped and it made to ascend still higher, when a shell burst directly over it. Another descent was necessary, and three shells burst simultaneously below it.

Behind it and in front of it two shells burst at the same time. The Zeppelin, wriggled like some terrestrial in the coils. It seemed impossible for it to go north, south, east or west, and there it stood for a second or two, helpless to move, with the shells bursting all around it."

Aeroplanes in Pursuit.

One who witnessed the end from a country lane on the northern outskirts of London at a distance of eight or nine miles heard the Zeppelin pass over first and then aeroplanes in pursuit. He said:

"If there was no explosion from bombs the lack of noise from this source was made up by the whirr of aeroplanes in pursuit. They took up the chase through the white fog. The Zeppelin flew off and darkness once more reigned.

"Then the country became as light as day and a glow of red illuminated everything. For a few moments the flame was so intense that it was easy to read the print of newspapers, and the objects in the thick fog were magnified two or three times their usual size. It was a fantastic scene. A roar followed and darkness again fell. A moment later the whole scene was again enlivened and then the countryside was once more swallowed up in darkness."

A flying officer said the destroyed Zeppelin appeared to him to be larger and longer than the usual type although he was not in a position to say that it was a super-Zeppelin.

The second Zeppelin, slightly damaged, came down near the coast. The crew of 22 was taken prisoner. The machine has been removed to an east coast arsenal.

Reports given out by the official press bureau stated that 30 persons had been killed during the raid and about 100 injured. The property damage amounted to about $1,000,000.

Hunting Crows; Hurt Himself.

Middletown, N. Y.—George Nell, a farmer of Jeffersonville, took his gun and went out to shoot crows which were raiding his cornfield. As he was about to raise his gun to fire at a crow the weapon was discharged, sending the charge into his foot and shooting off one of his toes, besides badly injuring his foot. The farmer then hurried his team and drove several miles to have a "surgeon dress" the wound.

Chaffeur to Joffre.

The Pollu, a lively little newspaper produced in the French trenches, prints this Joffre story:

The generalissimo's chauffeur, L., was chatting with some soldiers.

"Well," they asked him, "what does the general say?"

"Oh, not much; he talks very little."

"But yes—"

"Well, the other day, for instance, in getting into the car, he said: 'Things all right, L.—?' 'Yes, general, I replied."

"And was that all he said?"

"Another time he said to me, 'You have a very pleasing appearance, L.—?' 'Yes, general, I replied."

"But does he never speak about the war?"

"Oh, not often. But yet—the other day he did say to me, 'Ah, my brave L.—, when is this war going to end?'"

What Might Happen.

"What would happen," said a summer boarder, who is always trying to entertain the company, "if an irresistible force were to meet with an immovable body?"

"I reckon, maybe," replied Farmer Cornsossel, "there won't be nigh so many of us left to ask fool questions."

Meudon in Wartime.

Meudon, the gay Meudon of trysts and moonlight promenade, has been transformed into a military camp. The station platform is crowded with uniformed soldiers of all branches; men on foot in their suits of faded blue like dirty water, showing with pride holes torn in their coats by rifle bullets, convalescents wearing the old red bandoliers, used only by those behind the fighting line, often with one leg folded up; Zouaves, whose baggy trousers, formerly blood-red, have now changed to an earthy color; Belgians in long brown coats, who never smile, and British Tommies spick and span as if they had just stepped from a bandbox.

The women, in passing, glance at the war crosses and smile. Mine. Bernadine-Sjoestedt in Carriots Angezine.

GERMAN SUBMARINE SINKS SIX SHIPS OFF U. S. COAST; WARSHIPS SAVE LIVES

American Destroyers Rescue Passengers and Crews From British Liner and Five Freighters Torpedoed by Germans—Raider Visited Newport Before Making Attacks.

Boston, Oct. 10.—The submarine arm of the Imperial German navy ravaged shipping off the eastern coast of the United States on Sunday.

Four British, one Dutch and one Norwegian steamer were sent to the bottom or left crippled derelicts off Nantucket shoals.

Sunday night, under the light of the hunters' moon, the destroyer flotilla of the United States Atlantic fleet picked up passengers and crews of the destroyed vessels and brought them into Newport, R. I.

A number of Americans were among the passengers aboard the British steamer Stephano. All were saved.

List of Ships Sunk.

Stephano, British passenger liner, 2,144 tons gross, plying regularly between New York, Halifax and St. John's, N. B. Torpedoed southeast of Nantucket while bound for New York. Passengers and crew, numbering 144, were picked up by the destroyer Drayton and brought to Newport.

Strathdene, British freighter, 4,321 tons, torpedoed and sunk off Nantucket. Crew taken aboard Nantucket shoals lightship and later removed to Newport by torpedo-bout destroyers. The Strathdene left New York on Saturday for Bordeaux.

Vest Point, British freighter, 2,413 tons gross, 375 feet long, torpedoed and sunk off Nantucket. Crew abandoned the ship in small boats after a warning shot from the submarine's gun. Officers and men were taken aboard destroyer. Bound from London for Newport News.

Bloomersdijk, Dutch freighter, 3,201 tons, torpedoed and sunk south of Nantucket. Crew taken aboard a destroyer. The steamer was bound from New York for Rotterdam.

Christian Knudsen, Norwegian freighter, 2,533 tons, torpedoed and sunk near where the Bloomersdijk went down. Crew picked up by destroyers. The vessel sailed from New York Saturday for London.

Kingston, British freighter, torpedoed and sunk southeast of Nantucket. Crew missing and destroyer searching for them. This vessel is not named in maritime registers and may be the Kingstonian.

So far as known there was no loss of life, though at a late hour the crew of the British steamer Kingston had not been accounted for.

A submarine held up the American steamer Knisan, bound from New York for Genoa with steel for the Italian government, but later, on establishing her identity, allowed the American to proceed. The Knisan came into Boston harbor late at night.

The U-53, which paid a call to Newport on Saturday and disappeared at sunset. Some naval men, however, declared that at least two submarines are operating close to the American shore, though outside the three-mile limit.

Operate in Steamer Lanes.

The submarine or submarines had taken a position directly in the steamer lanes, where they could hardly miss anything bound in for New York or bound east from that port.

Vessels of the entente allied nations and neutral bottoms carrying contraband of war scurried to get within the three-mile limit of the American shore. Several that were following the outside course, shifted and made for the inside lane. The Stephano of the Red Cross line, however, was caught outside the neutral zone.

The destruction of this vessel was perhaps the biggest prize of the day. The craft had been sold to the Russian government and would have been used as an icebreaker after her present trip.

Throughout the day and up to late Sunday night, none of the patrolling fleet maintained by the British and French to protect their own shipping and American ships carrying munitions of war had been sighted, but the commander in chief of the British North Atlantic squadron, said at Halifax in response to queries from the United States that "all steps possible in the circumstances are being taken to deal with the situation."

The passengers and crews of the destroyed vessels who were brought into Newport reached there after midnight.

Use Guns and Torpedoes.

Later reports gave further details of the attacks. The Stephano met a submarine six miles southeast of Nantucket lightship and was attacked by gunfire and a torpedo. It remained afloat until 10:35 o'clock Sunday night.

The West Point went down ten miles south of the Nantucket lightship. The Strathdene was attacked

"off lightship," the report stated, and the Bloomersdijk was sunk three miles south of the lightship. It remained afloat some time, going down at 8:05.

The Bloomersdijk, a Dutch steamer, was caught near the graveyard of the others. The vessel remained afloat some time after being torpedoed, but went down at 8:05 o'clock. The news of its sinking was followed very quickly by the announcement that the Christian Knudsen, a Norwegian tank, also was a victim of the submarine.

The sinking of these neutral ships added to an impression in naval circles that at least two submarines were operating off the coast.

The American steamer Kansas was held up three miles east of Nantucket lightship.

The first wireless warning of the presence of a hostile submarine in the steamer lane was given in the distress signals of the West Point, which reported that it had been torpedoed 30 miles southeast of Nantucket light.

This message apparently was picked up by every vessel having a wireless equipment within range, for within a very short time press dispatches from St. John's, N. B., and Halifax, N. S., indicated that the patrolling battleships had received the alarm.

The British censorship, however, prevented the disclosure of the movements of the patrolling fleets.

Meanwhile, shipowners in Boston were communicating with their vessels at sea.

Editorial Comments

If you had two dollars to invest would you trust it to the business sagacity of Josephus Daniels? Then, why let him handle the millions that are to be spent on the new navy?

Judging by the signs of War Department activity the Administration is cunningly arranging to bring the millionaires home just in time to enable them to vote for Mr. Hughes.

A truth of thought on a one-track mind has to be composed of shuttle cars.

Three years ago Woodrow Wilson was explaining that hard times were psychological, but he isn't trying to squirm out of responsibility for the present prosperity.

The disaster to the Memphis caused very little excitement, Americans being used nowadays to seeing the navy on the rocks.

This Democratic Congress has passed into history—profane history.

President Wilson's speech of acceptance could have been phrased even more succinctly in the graphic words of Boss Tweed, "What are you going to do about it?"

We see by the interviews with the Mexican commissioners that the campaign slogan this year in the Southern boudit belt is "Thank God for Woodrow Wilson."

Mr. Wilson's eulogy of Lincoln at Hodgenville was more literary but less sincere than the one he pronounced upon himself at Shadow Lawn.

The new half dollars will have an olive branch on one side and on the other an eagle, in full flight. Wilson money.

Motto of the McAdoo shipping law: "The sun never rises on the American flag."

A Democrat's idea of an ideal watchdog of the Treasury is a Pommeranian.

Mr. Wilson is now busily engaged working the other side of the suffrage street.

The campaign agents who two years ago were busily engaged thinking God for Woodrow Wilson seem to be taking their vacations just now.

A record wasn't the only thing the late Congress broke—there's the Federal Treasury.

Congress didn't want a Tariff Commission composed of $12,000 men, those $7,500 salaries being designed for $1,200 men.

President Wilson's scheme for commissions for everything has been adroitly planned to make three jobs for deserving Democrats grow where only one would grow before.

Vice-President Marshall says Mr. Hughes is an echo of the past. Quite true. Of statesmanship, of patriotic performance and safe legislation.

First fruits of the Adamson bill: The New York street car strike.

SINFUL MUTILATION OF FAMOUS SPEECH

We notice that the editor of the Democratic campaign book, made up of samples of "Woodrow Wilson's Wit and Wisdom," has tampered with one speech by omitting the phrase "too proud to fight."

This snatches of less majesty, to say the least.

The only possible excuse for this sin of omission that we can think of is that there may also be times when a haughty handbook compiler is too proud to print.

Room dimensions and room uses determine light quantities required. Of course that simple fact is understood. But it may not be so thoroughly well known that very small electric lamps are made for use in parts of the house where only small amount of light is needed. Their operating cost is trifling.

MR. WILSON YIELDED PARTLY TO FEAR, PARTLY TO HOPE OF POLITICAL PROFIT.

President Wilson yielded to the dictation of the heads of the Brotherhoods, and made no effort to find out whether the demand was right or wrong. He made no effort to find out whether it could be complied with without raising freight rates. He made no effort to find out all the equities in the case; those affecting the men, those affecting the stockholders, those affecting the shippers. He took his orders from that one of the purloins in interest which he most feared. He insisted that the law be passed without inquiry. And then he deferred the operation of the law until after election, which, of course, could only have been done for political reasons. The question at issue was not that of an eight-hour day at all. The question was whether President and Congress should enact a law, without investigation and without knowledge, to give increased wages to a certain portion of the body of wage earners. The labor leaders on this issue, without regard to the right or wrong of the matter, first coerced the President, and then with his aid coerced Congress. The question at issue was not one of the hours of labor. It was one of wages. And it was settled by the President and Congress without investigation and without knowledge. The settlement was due partly to fear, and partly to hope of political profit. From the Speech of Colonel Roosevelt at Battle Creek, Michigan, in Behalf of Mr. Hughes.

WE SHOULD CONSIDER WHAT IS RIGHT THEN DO IT

"Our Government is based on the idea that we have Legislatures to investigate, to consider what is right and to do what is right. It is based on the idea that public opinion is formed from discussion of questions, and that we can come possibly to right solutions. It is not based on the idea that the Government must act without knowing the justice and merits of the cause in which it acts."—Mr. Hughes in His Speech at Portland, Maine.

ORDINANCE FOR BUILDING TOWN HALL

providing the funds required to pay the interest on said bonds promptly when and as the same falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of said bonds at their maturity, there is hereby levied on all taxable property of said village in addition to all other taxes the following direct annual tax to-wit:

For the year 1917 a tax sufficient to produce the sum of $250.00.

For the year 1918 a tax sufficient to produce the sum of $250.00.

For the year 1919 a tax sufficient to produce the sum of $700.00.

For the year 1920 a tax sufficient to produce the sum of $650.00.

For the year 1921 a tax sufficient to produce the sum of $625.00.

For the year 1923 a tax sufficient to produce the sum of $575.00.

For the year 1924 a tax sufficient to produce the sum of $550.00.

For the year 1925 a tax sufficient to produce the sum of $350.00.

and the Village Clerk of said Village is hereby directed forthwith to file a certified copy of this ordinance with the County Clerk of said County who shall in each of said years ascertain the rate percentum required to produce the aggregate tax hereinabove levied for such year and extend the same for collection upon the tax roll in connection with the tax levied for such year by said Village for general village purposes, and in each of said years said annual town tax shall be collected at the same time and in the same manner as the tax levied by said Village for general purposes for such year are collected, and when collected shall be used solely for the purpose of paying the interest and principal of the bonds hereby authorized, so long as any of said bonds remain outstanding.

Section 5. That a special election be called to be held on the second day of November A. D. 1916, for the purpose of submitting to the voters of this Village the proposition to appropriate thirty-five hundred dollars ($3500.00) for the building, erection and construction of said building, and the proposition whether money shall be borrowed for such purpose and bonds be issued to evidence such loan, and that this ordinance be submitted to the voters at such election. That said election shall be held in Frank Huber's Shop on Depot street; that notice of such election be given as is provided by law; that Elmer Brook, James H. McVey and W. E.

Volkman shall be judges of said election, and W. S. Rinear, B. F. Naber and Harry A. Isaacs shall be clerk of said election; that the polls be open from eight o'clock in the forenoon until seven o'clock in the afternoon of said day; that the election be conducted and the returns be canvassed all as is provided by law.

Section 6. That all ordinances or parts of ordinances heretofore passed in conflict with the provisions of this ordinance shall be and the same are hereby repealed.

Section 7. That this ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its approval by the voters of the village at the special election as is herein provided to be called.

Passed October seventh, A. D. 1916. Approved October seventh A. D. 1916. Published October twelve A. D. 1916.

W. S. Rinear,
President of Village Board.
Attest: Harry A. Isaacs,
Village Clerk.

The "Lake County Register," the new Semi-Weekly published at Libertyville made its first appearance on Wednesday last. The new paper is a continuation of the old Waukegan Weekly Gazette which is a well established weekly publication. The proprietors of the Register claim the honor of starting the first semi-weekly in Lake county, but we wish to inform them that a semi-weekly paper was published in Antioch, for some time, M. J. Weber, now on the Libertyville Independent, began the publication of a semi-weekly here April 30, 1907, but later changed to a weekly and still later ceased altogether.

Infantile Paralysis at Volo

A well advanced case of infantile paralysis was discovered near Volo on Wednesday morning when a physician examined Leslie Cossman, the 9 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Cossman. The boy is not expected to live. Although the little fellow has been complaining during the last few days, he was not confined to his bed and the illness not considered serious at all. He had in fact been attending the Fort Hill school.

The rural institution has been closed and is being fumigated and other quarantine measures taken. Volo is on the verge of a plague as result of the diagnosis.

Long Distance Service in Emergencies

A MEMBER of a family in the South was taken seriously ill and it was desired to have a nurse from an Eastern city take charge of the case.

At six o'clock Friday evening a long distance telephone call revealed that the nurse had gone to another city in the East many miles away.

A second long distance call engaged the nurse while a third call made a Pullman reservation for her on a midnight train so that she reached the patient's side early Sunday morning.

It is the universality of the Bell System, coupled with the efficiency of its employees that makes such emergency service possible.

KEEP U-BOAT PLEDGE ALLIES IN RETREAT

AMBASSADOR VON BERNSTORFF ASSURES THE PRESIDENT OF INTENTION.

LANSING CALLED BY WILSON

Executive to Discuss German Submarine Raids Off the U. S. Coast—Berlin Will Be Held to Promise on Oliver Warfare.

Long Branch, N. J., Oct. 11.—A conference between President Wilson and Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, at the summer White House and a telephone talk between the president and heads of departments involved in Washington on Monday revealed the following facts regarding the situation of the United States with respect to the activities of the U-33 off Nantucket lightship.

1. President Wilson will hold Germany to all its promises regarding its conduct of submarine warfare.

2. Ambassador von Bernstorff promises that Germany will hold sacred all its promises to the American government.

3. Secretary of the Navy Daniels says the Germans have not violated the neutrality of the United States, and that passengers and crews have been given a full measure of safety.

4. Secretary of State Lansing, while not ready to make a final decision, cannot see how the Germans have violated international law thus far in their campaign against allied shipping and contraband entering or leaving American ports. The promises regarding warning and safety of passengers and crews, he believes, apparently have been kept.

Secretary Lansing, it was announced, will come here for a conference with President Wilson concerning German submarine raids off the American coast.

The president made this statement before the German ambassador made his call.

"The German government will be held to the fulfillment of its promises to the government of the United States," he said. "The government will, of course, first inform itself as to all the facts that there may be no doubt or mistake as far as they are concerned."

"The country may rest assured that the German government will be held to the complete fulfillment of its promises to the government of the United States. I have no right now to question its willingness to fulfill them."

Count von Bernstorff spent only 15 minutes with the president. On leaving the summer White House he said to the correspondent:

"All the attacks on merchant ships off the American coast have been conducted in accordance with cruiser warfare."

BOSTON WINS IN 14 INNINGS

Red Sox Capture Second Game—Score 2 to 1—Home-Run Is Made by Myers.

Boston, Oct. 11.—Del Galner is the hero of Boston. He was called upon in the hour of Beantown's greatest need, and he responded with a smashing single which scored a Boston runner and gave the Red Sox a 2 to 1 victory in the fourteenth inning of the second battle for the world's championship.

Smith hurled a masterful game. "Hi" Myers scored Brooklyn's only run of the game in the first inning with a terrific home-run smash to center.

ROUMANIANS FLEE FROM KRONSTADT CITY—BUCHAREST ADMITS LOSS.

WILL GUARD THE FRONTIER

Troops Will Be Used in Attempt to Halt Teutonic Forces From Invading King Ferdinand's Soil—Berlin Says Town Was Recaptured.

Bucharest, via London, Oct. 10.—In the face of a far superior force, military German, the Roumanian troops from Hermannstadt to Kronstadt (70 miles) have been withdrawn to the Carpathian frontier, according to the official communication issued on Sunday from Roumanian headquarters, to insure defense of the frontier passes. The text reads in part:

"Northern front.—In the Alt valley of the Transylvania plain, in the region of Hermannstadt, Forquas and Kronstadt, in the face of very superior enemy forces, principally German, the Roumanian forces have been cleverly withdrawn to strategic positions on the Carpathian frontier to insure a strong defense of the four passes leading from Roumania to Kronstadt."

"All evidence shows that the Austro-Germans are bringing troops from all other fronts in order to make a desperate campaign in this region."

"According to the latest news the Roumanian offensive has already been resumed in the Jial valley and Culmen pass in the direction of Hermannstadt."

Berlin, via London, Oct. 10.—The city of Kronstadt, in the southeastern portion of Transylvania, its leading industrial and commercial center, and which was occupied by the Roumanians shortly after their entry into the war, has been recaptured by the Austro-German forces, the war office announced on Sunday. Kronstadt is about seven miles within the Austrian frontier.

All along the eastern line in Transylvania, the official statement reports, the Roumanians are falling back. From the Getzler forest the Teutonic forces have pressed into the Alt valley and fought their way forward.

Sofia, Oct. 10, via London.—The Serbians have met with repulses in their attacks on the Bulgarians along the western end of the Macedonian front, the war office announced, and again have been frustrated in efforts to cross the river Cerna, southeast of Monastir.

AUSTRIAN BATTLESHIP SUNK

Naval Headquarters on Adriatic Herebefore Untouched by Italian Hostile Force.

Rome, Oct. 10.—Reports were in circulation here on Sunday that an Austrian battleship has been blown up in Pola harbor.

Pola is Austria's naval base in the Adriatic, and is 60 miles south of Trieste, the principal seaport.

It is from Pola that the Austrian submarines have been operating in the attacks upon the allied merchantmen and warships in the Mediterranean.

WILSON NAMES 8-HOUR BOARD

ANOTHER LITTLE STUDY

SLAYER IS GIVEN LIFE NINE PERISH IN FIRE

MICHIGAN MAIL-ORDER MURDERER SENTENCED TO PRISON.

Scott Mausell, Alias James C. Allerton, Pleads Guilty in Court—Proposed to Many.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 6.—Michigan's mail-order murderer was taken to Jackson prison to spend the remainder of his life. He is now sixty-four years old and in feeble health.

Scott Mausell of Manvelon, Mich., a former lumber-camp worker, is his name, although he was arrested as James C. Allerton.

Three hundred women, scattered all over the United States and Canada, will thank their stars that they did not heed his urgent wooing and sell their property to become his wife. Mausell has confessed that he killed Mrs. Anna St. John of Elmira, N. Y., and Westboro, Wis., aged fifty-five, and is now believed to have murdered his son and his two sisters in the East eight years ago.

When arraigned, Mausell pleaded guilty before the court but the question. Then Judge McDonald as the question. Mausell was sentenced to life in prison.

No time was lost in bringing Mausell to justice. He married Mrs. St. John September 19, killed her September 22; was arrested October 2, and sentenced October 4.

U. S. EXPORTS ARE GROWING

$3,435,969,212 Worth of Goods Shipped—Britain Bought Largest Amount.

Washington, Oct. 9.—The enormous extent of recent gains in the export trade of the United States is disclosed in statistics issued on Friday by the department of commerce. Total exports to the various countries for the first eight months of the calendar year were in many cases millions of dollars greater than those of the entire fiscal year of 1914 and very large increases are shown in percentages. Total exports for the eight months of $1,730,000,000 in favor of the United States, and department officials predict that by the end of the year it will exceed $2,500,000,000.

The total exports amounted to $3,435,969,212, an increase of $1,205,082,010 over the same eight months a year ago. The largest gain was in exports to the United Kingdom, which took nearly one-third of all goods exported. These exports amounted to $1,207,751,623. France, the second best customer of the United States, took goods valued at $544,475,000. Russia took $300,262,620 worth. Exports to Germany and Austria have almost ceased.

BIG BRITISH LINER IS SUNK

25,000-Ton Franconia Torpedoed in Mediterranean—Used to Transport Troops.

London, Oct. 7.—The 25,000-ton transatlantic liner Franconia of the Cunard line, one of the finest vessels on the Atlantic, has been sunk by a German submarine, according to a Lloyd's announcement on Thursday. The Franconia had not been in the passenger-carrying service recently, being used for transport duty in the Mediterranean.

The dispatch adds that at the time the vessel was sunk no troops were on board.

This statement is confirmed by the admiralty, which adds that 12 of the crew of 302 are unaccounted for.

Rites for Noted Invalid.

Forms New Greek Cabinet.

Athens, Oct. 10.—Prof. Spyridon P. Laubros, professor of history of the University of Athens, has been named to form a new Greek cabinet. It is understood that it will include M. Andreidis, erstwhile U. S. ambassador to Greece, president of the Anglo-Hellenic league.

CHRISTIAN BROTHERS' COLLEGE AT ST. LOUIS DESTROYED.

Two of Known Dead Are Priests, and Others Firemen Buried in Ruins.

St. Louis, Oct. 7.—Nine men are known to have died in a fire which destroyed the central portion of the main building of Christian Brothers' college here on Thursday. Two of the known dead were aged members of the Christian Brothers' order, long connected with the college, but on the retired list, and in recent months in the infirmary. They were trapped on the fifth floor.

Five known to be dead were firemen, who were carried to the basement from the third floor when a wall collapsed.

The names of the dead follow: Rev. Brother Cornue, aged ninety-three; Rev. Brother Clement, aged seventy-two; Louis Noleen, infirmarian, home in Morrisville, Ill.; Harry Budde, fireman engine company; Edward Kuenert, fireman; Michael Waters, fireman; John Parshall, fireman; George Young, fireman; Edward Sheehy, watchman.

The fire was discovered by the registrar of the college, Brother Alban. He turned in an alarm and hurried to the dining hall in the basement, where 195 students and 30 members of the faculty were at breakfast. He quietly told Brother James of the fire and the latter ordered the students and faculty to march out of the building.

The loss is estimated at more than $300,000. The entire central portion of the building was wrecked, but two wings were saved. The natural history and curio museum was destroyed.

GERARD NOT PEACE ENVOY

Acting Secretary of State Polk Says Tale of Message From Kaiser Is Unfounded.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Acting Secretary of State Polk announced that he did not believe there was any truth in the story published by the New York Evening Post, that Germany has decided to request President Wilson to use his influence to bring about peace.

"I do not believe there is any truth in the report," Mr. Polk stated.

"Certainly nothing has been done, and there are no indications that any part of the report is true."

Mr. Polk reiterated statements that Ambassador Gerard, who is en route to the United States, has no message from the German kaiser for President Wilson.

The New York Post's story claimed "on a trustworthy source" that Ambassador Gerard was the bearer of a personal message from the kaiser.

PRIEST KILLED; BISHOP HURT

Father Shannon Also Seriously Injured in Auto Crash Near Princeton, N. J.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 6.—Father Schuetz was killed and Bishop Dunne and Father Shannon seriously injured in an automobile wreck near Princeton, N. J., ten miles north of here on Wednesday.

The three clergymen were on their way to a confirmation at Princeton, N. J., when the accident occurred. An automobile coming toward the priest at high speed caused Father Schuetz, who was driving the bishop's car, to turn out of the road, permitting the speeding car to pass. It was when Father Schuetz tried to drive back into the road that the car turned turtle.

Bishop Dunne was thrown from the car, but escaped with minor scratches.

Thirty Planes for Boelke.

Berlin, Oct. 10 (by wireless).—The war office statement says: "Five hostile aeroplanes were shot down in aerial engagements and by our anti-aircraft guns. Captain Boelke put his third opponent out of action."

Forms New Greek Cabinet.

Athens, Oct. 10.—Prof. Spyridon P. Laubros, professor of history of the University of Athens, has been named to form a new Greek cabinet. It is understood that it will include M. Andreidis, erstwhile U. S. ambassador to Greece, president of the Anglo-Hellenic league.

TAKE BANK BANDITS

TWO MEN WHO HELD UP COVINGTON (IND.) INSTITUTION TAKEN AFTER GUN FIGHT.

WERE SURROUNDED IN WOOD

Robbers Attacked Cashier and Escaped With $2,000—Woman Employee Leads Posse in Chase After Pair—Dozen Shots Fired.

Danville, Ill., Oct. 9.—Two men entered the Citizens' State bank at Covington, Ind., east of here, on Friday afternoon, held up the cashier, S. P. Graves, who was alone in the bank at the time, and, when they were surprised at their work by Miss Lura Ward, the bookkeeper, they grabbed up what money they could find, about $2,000, and ran down an alley and made for the country. They were pursued by Miss Ward and a hastily-organized posse and, after a battle in the woods south of Covington, in which more than a dozen shots were exchanged and one of the robbers wounded, they were captured by the chief of police and members of the posse.

At the county jail the men gave their names as William Dickson of Canada and E. Walter Grefent, Detroit, Mich. Dickson is twenty-six years old and Grefent is but seventeen.

When captured, the men had less than $200 on their persons, but the greater part of the stolen money was found along the road, between the bank and the woods.

The cashier, while he was roughly handled by the two men, is not seriously hurt.

Streator, Ill., Oct. 9.—Robbers dynamited the state bank at Hatland, near here, escaping with $8,000.

The robbers, after exchanging shots with Fred W. Itoher, escaped in an automobile. The State Bankers' association has offered a reward of $500 for the capture of each member of the band, which is supposed to number five.

Ottawa Lake, Mich., Oct. 8.—The safe in the People's Savings bank here was blown. Bank officers report that $1,200 was stolen.

KIDNAPER SHOT BY VICTIM

Colorado Mine Manager Captured by Band of Greeks and Threatened With Death.

Onk Creek, Colo., Oct. 9.—Kidnaped Wednesday night by a band of Greeks and held for $15,000 ransom, Robert Perry, thirty-five years old, manager of the Moffat coal mines at Onk Creek, shot one of his captors on Friday, wounding him seriously, and escaped.

Perry, a bachelor, lived in one of the mine homes. The Greeks broke into his home Wednesday night. Poses sent out could not locate the missing man. Thursday night his father, owner of the mine, received a special delivery letter threatening his son with death if $15,000 was not forthcoming on Saturday night.

The kidnaped man was taken to a deserted cabin in a canyon, 20 miles from here.

Perry reached a ranch at Twenty-Mile Park, ten miles from here, and telegraphed word of his escape.

Sheriff J. C. Frye and a posse from Steamboat Springs, began pursuit of the other members of the gang.

One of the kidnappers was arrested and taken to jail at Steamboat Springs, where he refused to divulge his name.

SHIP IS SUNK AFTER CRASH

Passengers Injured on City of Norfolk When It Rams Freighter in Hampton Roads.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 9.—The British steamer Hawkhead, at anchor in Hampton Roads off Sewall's Point, was run down and sunk about eight o'clock on Friday night by the Chesapeake Steamship company's Day line steamer City of Norfolk, outward bound from this port for Baltimore with passengers. The City of Norfolk was badly damaged about the bow, but there was no loss of life. Reports from Old Point said the passengers, several of whom were injured, were taken aboard the river steamer Pocahontas.

GEORGE A. JOSLYN IS DEAD

President of the Western Newspaper Union Passes Away at His Home in Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 6.—George A. Joslyn, president of the Western Newspaper Union, died at his home here at the age of sixty-eight. He had been in failing health for more than a year.

Mr. Joslyn leaves a widow and one daughter, both of whom were at his bedside at the time of his demise.

ZEKE BLUFFS UMPIRE AT THIS BALL GAME

"Two What?" He Demands, and the Scared Judge Gasps, "Too High," Meekly.

Mohile, Ala.—Professional baseball players who are terrorized and maltreated by the "umps" will do well to read what happened when an umpire called a bad strike on "Zeke" Williams, the champion pinch hitter of the "Colored" League of the South. "Zeke" is a brother of Bert Williams, well known to Broadway, New York, and other parts of the world. He can't field, pitch or run worth a cent, but he can slam the ball over the highest fence ever built. He does nothing but pinch hit, and frequently, when his six feet four go up against a swift one, the ball is either destroyed or lost. No one, so far as known, ever sees it after he lays solidly up against it.

"Two What?" He Snarled.

Recently in a game between his team and the Giants at Vicksburg, he was called upon to pinch hit in the ninth. "The score was a tie; two were out and three were on bases. The 5,000 brethren whooped their heads off or hissed—as their emotions prompted when "Zeke" took his place at bat.

A ball whizzed past, directly over the plate. He did not budge. "One strike," sang the umpire in a falsetto voice.

Another ball flashed over the plate, but head high. "Zeke" let it pass. The crowd got uneasy.

"Two!" chirped the umpire, from behind the pitcher.

"Zeke" paused a second, lowered his head, stuck out his powerful jaw and swung toward the umpire.

"Two what?" he snarled, so everyone could hear him.

"Too high," sang the umpire.

HANG ELEPHANT FOR MURDER

Circus Animal Gave Her Life After Killing Walter Eldridge, the Eighth Victim.

Bristol, Tenn.—"Murderous Mary," the huge elephant which killed Walter Eldridge, an employee of Sparks' circus in Kingsport, was sentenced to death by the state authorities and hung for her crimes. Members of the circus admitted that Eldridge was the eighth man Mary had killed. The beast was valued at $8,000.

Her attack on Eldridge was without warning, and occurred before a crowd of spectators. The elephant lifted her victim in her trunk, hurled him to the ground and gored him to death. Spectators fired a volley of revolver bullets into the beast, but apparently without effect. Her keeper subdued her, but the authorities ordered her execution.

The showman had no proper poison at hand, so obtained a derrick car from a railroad, looped chains about the animal's neck and swung her off the ground. She struggled desperately, but finally choked to death.

TWICE BALKED AT THE ALTAR

Flancee Had Hard Time Summoning Up Courage to Marry Arthur—But Time Seemed to Bring Charm.

Somerville, Mass.—After balking twice at the very threshold of matrimony, Miss May Richardson of this city, finally summoned up enough courage to become the wife of Willis W. Hadden, leading man of the stock company in Newburyport, Mass., and matinee idol of Essex county. On the first two trips to the altar Miss Richardson withdrew her hand as the minister was beginning the ceremony. Each time she departed with the perplexed Hadden, who importuned her to return and become his bride.

Several days ago Miss Richardson and Hadden appeared a third time at the home of a minister. While Mr. Hadden feverishly watched his nuptial knot being tied, the minister proceeded with the ceremony without an interruption, and the twain were united at last.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Designing Great Field Howitzers for Our Army

WASHINGTON.—Army ordnance experts are at work on designs for huge field howitzers as large as or larger than the German 42-centimeter guns which wrecked Belgium and French forts early in the war. They will be at least 16-inch caliber, with a range of 12 to 15 miles, hurling a projectile weighing more than a ton and carrying a large amount of high explosive. In addition to placing several of these mammoth weapons along the coast line for mobile defense against naval attack, army officials are now considering the creation of a special regiment, equipped with six howitzers, to work as a unit of the mobile army. The problem confronting the designers in that regard is to distribute the enormous weight of the gun and carriage in such a way that it can be moved over any good road. That difficulty is a determining factor in heavy artillery designs. Around a few of the largest cities well-haulled roads which would support the weight of the huge guns can be found, but even such a highway as the post road from Boston to New York, it is said, has many sections so lightly built that the great weight would crush through.

How Four Girls From Ohio Got Coveted Tickets

OUT in Cleveland, O., there are four young women who are telling how they saw the president deliver his railroad strike message to the joint session of congress. The day the senate and house met together there was the usual scramble for seats in the galleries. This privilege is as valuable as a gold-bearing claim in the Rocky mountains. Each senator gets one ticket for the galleries; each representative gets one, and there are a few favored officials of congress who get from five to ten apiece. Upon this occasion there were the usual number of visitors in town, each one of whom believed fervently that all he had to do was to descend upon his representative or senator and ask for the gallery privilege and receive it. This might be true if the galleries held 10,000 people instead of 900.

The four young women from Cleveland, luckier than most visitors, received one ticket, to be parceled among the quartet. They were seated in the restaurant of the house of representatives at lunch planning to draw lots to see which one should take the prized ticket, and just as they had settled this see which one of them shrieked aloud and jumped from her chair with a brand-new silk dress soaking with coffee.

At the same moment, Theodore Tiller, president of the National Press and veteran of the press gallery of the house, arose with confusion covering him from head to foot. He felt, he said, as if he was about to be hanged. Apologies dripped from him, and he resembled the last rose of summer and other sad spectacles. There was no question about the dress being spoiled. Tiller had upset a large cup of coffee, and every bit of it had fallen into the young woman's lap. Suddenly she said: "Are you a member of congress?" Mr. Tiller resented the accusation. "Because if you are," continued the coffee-stained one, "if you would get us a ticket to the gallery today I would forgive you." She said that Representative Gordon of Ohio had promised to get one for her, but that he had not shown up. "Tickets are hard to get," said Tiller, "but I will see what I can do." He then left the restaurant. In ten minutes Mr. Tiller appeared again with three gallery tickets. Where he got them no one knows, but the lady with the coffee in her lap is understood to have said, just before leaving the capitol: "Oh, Mr. Tiller, if you get us tickets every time the president speaks, you can pour coffee on me all you want."

Old Civil War Veteran Seeks Small Navy Berth

AN Old man in his eightieth year, who ran ammunition down the Potomac river during the Civil war and piloted transports that brought the dead and wounded of the battle of the Wilderness to Washington, came to the navy department the other day looking for a job.

"I've done too much for my country to be left to starve," he told naval officers to whom he made his application. "My $24 a month pension is just enough to starve on."

The old man was William Key, who has lived in Southwest Washington since his wife died a year ago. He was unable to see Secretary Daniels, but other officers at the department told him all the civilian navy positions were under the civil service.

"Why don't you go to the Soldiers' home?" one of the naval officers asked him. "I'm a sailor man from tip to toe," the patriarchal Key replied, "and soldiers and sailors don't agree."

The veteran brought with him to the navy department his record, as published by the United States Army and Navy Historical association, and which showed he had been active in the Union side all during the war after he escaped from the Confederate navy, into which he had been conscripted for three months.

"I've never asked the government for anything before," the veteran said when he came to the navy department. "And now I only want some little job that will enable me to keep soul and body together."

The veteran left the navy department disappointed, but not yet ready to give up his quest for a job.

Capitol Employee Posed for Pediment Statuary

JOHN A. MARTIN, electrician employed at the capitol, is the original of the ironworker in the group of statuary recently placed on the pediment of the house wing of the capitol. This fact became known when a letter of the sculptor, Paul Bartlett, and one of Superintendent Elliott Woods of the capitol were shown to friends by Mr. Martin.

The ironworker in the group of statuary is an important part of the whole figure, which represents Peace protecting Genius. He is a companion piece to the character in the group which represents agriculture, the sculptor explaining in his address at the unveiling that agriculture and the iron industry form the fundamentals of the country's prosperity. Mr. Martin, who became acquainted with Paul Bartlett some time ago, was asked by the sculptor to pose for this part of the group. Later Elliott Woods, superintendent of the capitol, wrote the following letter to Martin: "I am requested to extend the thanks of Paul Bartlett, sculptor, for your kindness in posing for some portions of the modelling for the statuary to be installed in the pediment of the house wing of the capitol. It is a compliment to you that a great artist like Mr. Bartlett should so approve of your physical development as to want you to pose for one of these figures. It is in this manner to one of the great pieces of art for the nation's capitol."

The HOME BEAUTIFUL Flowers and Shrubbery Their Care and Cultivation

Among the Most Satisfactory House Plants for Winter Are Palms and Climbing Vines.

HOUSE PLANTS IN WINTER

By L. M. BENNINGTON.

Among the most beautiful and satisfactory house plants for winter are palms. They are very strong and hardy, and with the observation of a few simple rules can be kept green and vigorous all winter. More palms are killed by overheating than by cold. They should have a temperature of between 60 and 65 degrees. If it is not convenient to have any room in the house kept as cool as this, stand them in the corner furthest from the radiator, as close as possible to the light, but not in the glaring sun.

The worst enemy of the plants is dust. Owing to its smooth leaves, the palm can be readily kept free from this. Its leaves should be washed with a soft sponge and lukewarm water.

The watering of the plants is of great interest. The great danger is that the housewife will be too generous in this respect. It is difficult to give a definite rule. Generally speaking, the earth in the pot should be kept moist, but not wet. If the room is kept at high temperature, the plant will require more water than in a cool place. But water should be a time of rest for the plant. It should not do much growing, and therefore nourishment and water should be given sparingly. It is easy to soak the soil of a plant, but hard to dry it, once thoroughly wet.

Neither a palm, or any other plant, should ever be put in a glazed pot. If an ornamental pot is desired, the earthen pot should be set inside. A porous pot absorbs and evaporates the moisture, while in a glazed pot the earth grows sour and unfit for even very hardy plants. There should be a hole in the bottom of the pot, over which in the bottom of the broken crockery or a stone, a bit of broken crockery or something similar should be laid. This will keep the earth from filling it up, and the surplus water will trickle out beneath. A few hunks of common charcoal at the bottom of the pot will prevent the roots from rotting, and powdered charcoal mixed with the earth has the same effect, keeping the bottom from turning sour.

Having temperature and moisture right, the next enemy of the plant is parasites, such as fungi and insects. Many little insect pests infest the palm. Some of these are destroyed by washing the leaves with a sponge and soft brush, using clean water only.

Those that cannot be destroyed in this way, such as scales, can be quickly dispatched by tobacco juice diluted with water. Any tobaccoist or cigar manufacturer will give you all the tobacco of these in a quart of water and a handful of leaves with this, and boil. Wash the leaves with this, and if you put in a little whale-oil soap, it will be more effective. Of course, there are many insecticides used by florists, but this is a cheap, simple remedy, which is just as effective as any other. Being a vegetable poison, no great care is required in handling or using the tobacco juice, whereas Paris green and other mineral poisons should be applied with the greatest precaution, as even a slight overdose will scorch the leaves and thereby ruin the plant.

CONSIDER THE PHLOX

By L. M. BENNINGTON.

Even moralists tell us that there is an element in all mankind that leads to the enjoyment of speculation and chance. For the gratification of this instinct I do not know any more interesting study than the phlox when one resorts to seeds for the growth of plants. Of course, the staid, regular garden worker will resort to cuttings, because no one can guess, even approximately, what will come from the seed venture.

But there is a lot of fun in taking the seeds and watching the results. They may be anything, from a perverse and wayward floral child to the light of the garden when it is left to first principles for its start in life.

The phlox Drummondii is the first parent of the family. It was found growing wild in Texas back in 1834, and since that time it has grown in popularity. Essentially a garden flower, it fully justifies the use of the Greek name because it is literally a flame of light. There is no question but that it is far better for having been planted in the fall. At the first hint of spring it will start its growth, and the hard treatment of a rough winter will not serve to deter it in its determination to help brighten the world. The one thing that phlox will not stand is heavy clay soil. Planted along walls and hedges, with borders and in places where the irregular size of the plants affords contrast in color, there is nothing more calculated to add life to the garden vista than the simple phlox.

CARE OF THE HOLLYHOCK

Keep the hollyhock flowers picked off. Remove them as soon as they begin to die. This serves two purposes: it makes the plant more attractive and it prevents seed from forming. If you have noticed, there are almost always little branches starting about the base of the old plants. If seed is not allowed to develop, the energy of the plant will be expended on those, and they will bear a good crop of flowers late in the season. But if the plant perfects seed, they never amount to anything. See to it that they are encouraged to make themselves useful.

Diplomatic intercourse. Col. E. M. House said at a dinner in Washington: "I sometimes think that diplomacy would be more successful if it were more truthful and frank. The way some diplomats treat one another, they don't get any nearer to real, helpful intercourse than the two celebrities did. Two celebrities, one a stutterer and the other deaf, were introduced at a tea. After the tea the stuttering celebrity was asked how he and the deaf one had got on. "Oh, we got on fine," he answered. "I couldn't talk and he couldn't hear me."

Putting Him Wise. "What road leads to success?" asked the very young man. "Any road that is macadamized with grit and sun," replied the Shelbyville sage.

Grapes for the King. It is reported that the king's grapevine at Windsor, in the gardens near Cumberland Lodge, is doing well this year, and is likely to yield more than 500 bunches. Planted in 1775, it is 120 feet in length and 20 feet in width. The most remarkable vine in Europe, however, is the famous vine at Hampton Court, from which this is a cutting. This was planted in 1703 and still yields abundantly.

When Work Is Hard

That kidney troubles are so common is due to the strain put upon the kidneys in so many occupations, such as: yarding and jolting on railroads, etc.; cramping and straining in bartending, moulding, heavy lifting, etc.; exposure to changes of temperature in iron furnaces, refrigerators, etc.; dampness as in tanneries, quarries, mines, etc.; including poisonous fumes in painting, printing and chemical shops. Doan's Kidney Pills are fine for strengthening weak kidneys.

An Illinois Case

Chas. Mason, Deputy St. W., Chicago, Ill., says: "I was annoyed by having to get up often during the night to pass the kidney secretions. My back ached so badly I could hardly straighten. Sitting down so much at my work had a lot to do with bringing on the trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills fixed me up in good shape and I have been free from kidney weakness ever since."

Women Once Invalids

Now in Good Health Through Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Say it is Household Necessity. Doctor Called it a Miracle.

All women ought to know the wonderful effects of taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound even on those who seem hopelessly ill. Here are three actual cases:

Harrisburg, Penn.—"When I was single I suffered a great deal from female weakness because my work compelled me to stand all day. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for that and was made stronger by its use. After I was married I took the Compound again for a female trouble and after three months I passed what the doctor called a growth. He said it was a miracle that it came away as one generally goes under the knife to have them removed. I never want to be without your Compound in the house."—Mrs. FRANK KNOLL, 1642 Fulton St., Harrisburg, Penn.

Hardly Able to Move.

Albert Lea, Minn.—"For about a year I had sharp pains across my back and hips and was hardly able to move around the house. My head would ache and I was dizzy and had no appetite. After I taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, I am feeling stronger than for years. I have a little boy eight months old and am doing my work all alone. I would not be without your old remedies in the house as there are none like them."—Mrs. F. E. Yoss, 611 Water St., Albert Lea, Minn.

Three Doctors Gave Her Up.

Pittsburg, Penn.—"Your medicine has helped me wonderfully. When I was a girl 18 years old I was always sickly and delicate and suffered from irregularities. Three doctors gave me up and said I would go into consumption. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and with the third bottle began to feel better. I soon became regular and I got strong and shortly after I was married. Now I have two nice stout healthy children and am able to work hard every day."—Mrs. CHESTERINA DOWNING, 84 Gardner St., Troy Hill, Pittsburg, Penn.

A Fruit-Picking Harness.
A help to the fruit picker has been devised consisting of broad straps or suspenders to which the fruit basket or pail is hung by metal hooks in front of the operator, leaving the hands free for picking. Equipped with this harness the picker goes about his task with ease, placing the fruit in the receptacle in front of him. He does not need to worry about its getting away from him, as the old pail hanging on the tree branch often did, and he can strip a tree clean of its fruit in much less time with this new contrivance.

Protect the Blankets.
The careful housekeeper will protect the ends of her blankets or comforters with a case made for that purpose. An exceedingly attractive one has a turnover which is embroidered. The under part of the case usually is made to fit the quilt and the turnover on the right side is about nine or ten inches wide. This part is usually hemstitched and embroidered in sprays or wreaths.

College Pride.
When a student is told that some other college has a better stadium, he feels little satisfaction in the rejoinder that his has a better science building. —Lafayette Journal.
